

MAN STRUCK WITH BAT IN FIGHT IS SERIOUSLY HURT

SMITH MOVE TIGHTENS RACE

Classic Conflict Looms for Democratic Presidential Nomination.

ACTION HITS ROOSEVELT

New York Governor's Chances of Gaining Victory Appear Lessened.

By The Associated Press
WASHINGTON, Feb. 8.—A classic contest for the Democratic presidential nomination is in sight on the strength of Alfred E. Smith's announcement that he will stand ready if the party calls him once again.

For a and foe united in acknowledging him a candidate, although few actually believe he can win.
The prospect is heightened for a contest in the convention, to be held at St. Louis. Today at least, Republicans think well of the chances, in this event, of Speaker John N. Garner, the leader.

If the Democratic national convention should decide that
"it was me to lead, I will make the fight," Smith said in a terse statement published today.

Roosevelt Silent
His statement itself was widely quoted in effect a threat
against the candidacy of Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York. Roosevelt declined to comment. So also did Gov. Ritchie, Massachusetts candidate, Speaker Garner and Newton D. Baker, each of whom has been mentioned as a possibility.

Republicans generally expressed belief in a fight within the Democratic party would bolster the Republican chances at the election.

Opposition Grows
Washington comment on Smith's declaration showed no new support for him and a good many of his followers aligned in opposition.

The thrust of the pro-Smith drive
is to fall on the hitherto runaway candidate of Franklin D. Roosevelt.
Until the Smith declaration with
"that of taking votes in logical
territory, the New York
governor was gathering support
at a rate that was heading for domination by acclamation. Only a few sons have contested.
Hardly a one had much show of support outside his own state.

New these favorite son commitments are destined to play an important part. Smith supporters count upon them to absorb enough
of the votes beyond their own reach to hold Roosevelt below the necessary two-thirds strength needed to nominate. Thus the Smith drive developed, and the favorite son combined would exercise
the power to nominate, but the power to veto.

Smith Seeks 278 Votes
In the favorite son column appear of the convention's 1,554 votes. Illinois for Lewis, Maryland
for Ritchie, Missouri for Reed, Ohio for White, Oklahoma for Murphy, Texas for Garner, and Virginia for Byrd.

The Smith men are trying principally for 278 votes: New York,
New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Massachusetts, New Hampshire, Connecticut and Rhode Island.

Press Comment Mixed
In the home state of New York
Smith found press comment mixed.

Earl Almendinger in Hospital After Altercation
at Prospect.

GRUDGE RENEUED

Greer Chapman Held in Prison; Eluded Officers
24 Hours.

Earl Almendinger, 22, of Prospect, struck over the head with a baseball bat in a Prospect pool room yesterday afternoon during a fight climaxing a year-old grudge,
is in serious condition at City hospital today.

Greer Chapman, about 24, also of Prospect, who eluded authorities
nearly 24 hours after striking Almendinger with the bat, surrendered to Marshall E. C. Fitch at Prospect late this morning. He is in the village prison while authorities watch developments in Almendinger's condition to decide what steps will be taken.

Old Grudge Revived
Almendinger and Chapman came to blows early Sunday afternoon
when an heated exchange of words revived a quarrel of a year ago in which Almendinger is said to have beaten Chapman. They were in the Russell Pool room, authorities said. Chapman is said to have run behind the counter, and drawn a gun from a drawer. The gun was taken from him. He seized the bat and struck Almendinger on the head, the blow falling above the right eye.

X-ray photographs of Almendinger were taken at the City hospital late this morning to determine whether his skull was fractured.
The attending physician reported that his condition appeared to be "fair" and that the injury was regarded as serious but not critical.

Village authorities were called,
and about an hour after the fight, Sheriff C. C. Eyer and his deputy were called. Almendinger was hurried to the City hospital in an ambulance, while authorities began a search for Chapman, who fled from the village.

To Question Witnesses
Chapman will be questioned by County Prosecutor R. M. Wilhelm
and other authorities tonight. Witnesses also will be questioned.
Several persons witnessed the fight. Earl Canterbury, Delbert Canterbury, John Gabriel and Harvey Sheppard, all of Prospect, were in the poolroom at the time, authorities said.

Details of the fight a year ago
were not known by authorities
this morning. The fight occurred along the banks of the Little Scioto river near the dam below the village.

The pool room where yesterday's fight occurred is the same one in which George Meyer was assaulted by Harold Hatcher, who is now serving a sentence in the Manassett reformatory for robbing Meyer, last Nov. 21. Hatcher assaulted Meyer with a whiskey bottle while they were in the rear of the pool room.

AKRON BANKER GETS 16 YEARS FOR THEFT

$24,000 Fine Also Meted Out for Embezzlement of $400,000.

By The Associated Press
CLEVELAND, O., Feb. 8.—Wiliam J. Ruff, former vice president of the First Central Trust company of Akron, today pleaded guilty to embezzlements alleged to have run as high as $400,000. He was fined $24,000 by Federal Judge Samuel H. West.

Ruff pleaded guilty to eight of 18 counts and was sentenced to two years and fined $3,000 on each count, the sentence to run consecutively. He will be sent to the Atlanta penitentiary.

Ruff became one of seven vice presidents when the First Central Trust was formed last November
in the $75,000 merger of the Central Depositors' Banking &
Trust company and the First City Trust & Savings bank. His alleged embezzlements were discovered
during the process of consolidating and reorganizing the banks.

He had been in the jail since
Dec. 3, when he was arrested in a downtown hotel here.

Ruff was prominent in Akron's banking circles for years and bankers there said his difficulties began when he attempted to recoup stock market losses.

Chinese Drive Japs Back

HALT INVASION INTO WOOSUNG

Chinese Forces Display New Spirit as Foe's Advance Is Checked.

JAP SHIPS OPEN FIRE

British Troops Placed in Precarious Position Between Rival Armies.

BULLETIN
By The Associated Press
SHANGHAI, TUESDAY,
Feb. 8.—The terrific bombardment of Chapei by the Japanese and the furious reply of Chinese guns, came to a stop
early today with little apparent change in the position on either side. The battle under the Chinese naval quarter before midnight had attained unparalleled proportions and the property damage within the International Settlement was heavy. As the firing across Chapei died out, Chinese headquarters announced that a machine gun section had moved down 500 Japanese during the day's engagement.

SHANGHAI, China, Feb. 8.—
Fighting with a spirit they had not hitherto exhibited, the Chinese army today repulsed a Japanese attack on the forts at Woosung and renewed bombardment of enemy
bluejackets holding Honkew.

The Japanese already had occupied a part of Woosung village, 16 miles down the Whangpo from Shanghai, but when they tried to extend their holdings the Chinese threw them back.

Japanese destroyers immediately opened up from the river and dropped shells in the village.
Over in Chapei where things were quiet in the morning, the Chinese unchained their trench mortars late in the afternoon and began shelling Honkew.

The Japanese replied with their artillery and sent a detachment of bluejackets into action with rifles and machine guns. The firing kept up for three hours and some of the shells fell inside the international settlement.

British volunteers strung along the settlement boundary, blocking a Japanese flank attack.

The Japanese moved along Ranger road, trying to get around a British "pillbox." If they had succeeded they could have fallen upon the Chinese rear.

But the British threw up the end of Sandbag barricade at the end of Ranger road and headed them off.
It blocked the movement, but it left the British in a delicate position, facing the Japanese in one direction and the Chinese in the other.

The Woosung battle turned virtually all attention from the Chapei front in Shanghai, already

Japan Proposes Treaty Revision

By The Associated Press
TOKYO, Feb. 8.—The Japanese government moved today for revision of the nine-power treaty under which Japan, with eight other world powers, agreed to respect
China's administrative integrity.

Included in the new proposal is a clause that Manchuria be eliminated from the treaty's provisions.

Under the new proposal, a spokesman said today, each large commercial center in China would be surrounded by a neutral zone 15 to 20 miles wide, policed under international supervision, with Chinese soldiers excluded.

The centers it would be proposed to demilitarize are Shanghai, Canton, Hankow, Tsingtau and Tientsin.

Victim of Monoxide Gas;
Many View Body.

Funeral services for the man
thought to have been James M.
Flynn, who died from the effects of monoxide gas from a gas stove
in a rooming house on Holmes place Wednesday noon, were held

Queen funeral home on east Center street. The services were conducted by Rev. F. P. Porter pastor of the Emmanuel Baptist church and burial was made in the Marion

The man was buried today after a futile effort by police and members of the Schaffner-Queen Co., to locate relatives or friends. A family from Wheeling, W. Va., called at the funeral home Saturday afternoon believing the dead man might be a relative while persons from Michigan, Pennsylvania, and Kentucky made an attempt to identify him yesterday.

Beatty May Contract Rare Disease in Lion Attack

Clyde Beatty, formerly of Chillicothe, known here for his appearance two years ago in a sensational wild animal act
with the Jagenbeck-Wallace circus, may have contracted a rare disease when he was bitten Jan. 23 by Nero, an African lion, one of his most trusted animals, according to an Associated Press dispatch from Indianapolis, Ind.

Beatty's condition at a Peru,
Ind., hospital was reported last night as improving, but the possibility of the disease infection was described as serious.

Scientists at Indiana university hospital revealed last night they are trying to identify an organism found in the wound on Beatty's right leg.

Dr. Thurman B. Rice said he was inclined to believe it may be one of the Pasteurella germs,

No Phone for Nertz.

By The Associated Press
CHICAGO, Feb. 8. Mr. Herman Nertz has had his telephone disconnected. Several weeks ago when it became known there really was such a person folks began calling and saying, "Who is this?"
He would reply, "Nertz," and the caller, in high glee, would shout
"Nertz, yourself." So Mr. Nertz
has had his phone disconnected.

in a telephone booth at 12:45 a. m.
today.

A machine gunner chopped him down coolly and deliberately in a west Twenty-third street drugstore.

A single slug tore away the nose
the 24-year-old hoodlum so often
had turned up at his deadly rival,
"Dutch" Schultz. A line of lead moving like a snare cut through the fleshy coat and vest, and into his chest.

FARMERS SURPRISE MEN LOOTING HOUSE

Trio Escapes in Auto After Vigilantes Open Fire with Shotguns.

An impromptu group of vigilantes armed with shotguns prevented the attempt Saturday night of three men to raid the farm of Ed Ruth,
three miles west of Green Camp,
A. N. Johnson, tenant on the farm,
was absent at the time.

The three men escaped through
the field, leaving their loot behind,
after being fired upon by a group of neighboring farmers. One of the men had been driving an automobile up and down the road near the house, waiting for his companions to bring the loot to the car.

He had been parking in front of the house until sighted by William Rice, a neighbor, who became suspicious when he drove on, only to stay in the immediate vicinity.

The other two men had gone to the farmhouse, gathered up five gallons of lard, 25 pounds of sausage, one ham, seven chickens and a clock, Ruth said this morning.
They took to the roadside before a group of neighbors, collected by Rice, came running across the fields. The invaders then fled,
with the farmers firing at them
until out of range.

Besides Rice those in the party were Ed Ruth, M. J. Flach, G. A.
Ruth and H. G. Cooper.

this morning that her death was caused by inflammation of the bowels due to eating the corn. She

NOT GUILTY

Edward Allen, young Philadelphia society man who was acquitted by a jury in the Nerriestown, Pa., court Saturday night on a charge of slay-ing Francis Donaldson, 3rd, is shown in the Associated Press
photo above just before he took the stand and told his story of the shooting. Allen's features express the intense strain
he was experiencing at that critical moment. Following the verdict of not guilty, there was a reunion and reconciliation of young Allen, his father and his sister, Rose. Donaldson was engaged to marry his sister, who had turned against her brother and father because of the shooting.

POWERS CLASH AT CONFERENCE

Great Britain, France Wrangle Over Methods of Abolishing War.

ENGLAND PRESENTS PLAN

French Proposal To Arm
League Scored by British Spokesman.

(Copyright, 1932, by The Associated Press)

GENEVA, Feb. 8.—Great Britain and France clashed pointedly at the world disarmament conference today over methods of abolishing war.

Sir John Simon, British spokesman, presented Great Britain's plan
for disarmament, including abolition of submarines and gas and chemical warfare, at the same time
sharply criticizing the French proposal for arming the league of nations.

"That the peace of the world is to be secured by preparing for war," he said, "is no longer believed by anybody for recent history manifestly disproves it."

Andrie Tardieu, French minister of war and head of the French delegation, countered that until the league is armed there can be no peace in the world. He denied that the French plan was "merely a maneuver."

The nations must be ready to join France in giving mutual pledges of assistance against aggressors, he declared, before a real reduction of armaments can be realized.

"Criticism of our plan, gentlemen,"
M. Tardieu said, "discuss it, present plans which you think are better. You will find us conciliatory, under the sole reservation that we will remain unshakably devoted to the fundamental basis or organization of peace because we are convinced that disarmament without organization would be giving a brutal and unjust encouragement
to numbers and to technical skill."

The listeners gathered at once that Tardieu aimed this at Germany, whose greater population and scientific efficiency have aroused the keenest fears in the French mind.

WILL REPAIR ARMORY HERE

Captain Receives Plans for Work: Will Accept Bids from Contractors.

Specifications for repairs at the armory, provided for by the state department of the National Guard several weeks ago, have been received by H. L. Taylor, captain of Co. D, 166th Infantry, from Fred W. Elliott, state armory architect. It was announced by Captain Taylor today.

Bids for the work, he said, must be in his hands not later than 6 p. m. Wednesday and it is expected the work will start at the earliest possible time after the contract has been awarded.

The work will include the rebuilding of the stairway wall leading to the drill room, repair of the drill room floor, new doors at several points, new fire hose, several additional radiators, a checking up of the electric wiring and a general cleaning up of the premises.

Captain Taylor, who extended an invitation to the public to visit the armory any night, also announced that the annual federal inspection would be held on March 17 with Captain Bert S. Wampler of Indiana in charge. The state inspection held several weeks ago, Captain Taylor said, was a preliminary to the federal inspection.

It was also announced by the captain that a report in circulation several months ago that the law granting members of the military company and contributing members, exemption from jury duty, had been repealed, was an error.

The law, he said, had not been repealed and pointed to an official communication from Adjutant General Frank D. Henderson, as proof of his statement. The general in his statement says that although the section of the general code of Ohio which contained a list of those exempted from jury duty, had been repealed, there was no expressed or implied repeal of section 5186, which provides for the exemption of active or contributing members of the National Guard.

The latest edition of the Ohio military code, Captain Taylor said, also contains provisions for the exemption of members of the guard, either active or contributing. The latter, it was explained by the captain, are those who contribute a certain sum annually to the National Guard but are not active members.

Mrs. Griggs finds fresh Loveliness with Cellophane-wrapped CAMAY

Camay is Sealed in Cellophane at the Peak of Beauty Soap Perfection. It Comes to You as Fresh as Garden Roses!

"But how on earth do you keep your skin looking so clean and soft when you drive so much, Helen!"
"Fresh soap, darling. Camay is simply marvelous. Comes all sealed up in cellophane, you know."
"Mother used to let laundry soap get stale, to economize. But I'll certainly never use anything but fresh beauty soap on my skin again! This fresh Camay lather is simply the last word."
"Looking awfully pretty, Sally! Been running up a lot of beauty bills, honey?"
"Not a bit. I've just switched to fresh Camay soap. We'll see what it will do for your face, darling!"

Many women allow laundry soap to become aged and stale before they use it. But no woman who ever uses cellophane-wrapped Camay ever again returns to stale beauty soaps! Because Camay is just as fresh when it reaches you as when it was made, it lathers luxuriously the moment water touches it—even hard water. And it is far gentler, far safer, than any soap not wrapped in cellophane. It is mild—bland—delicately perfumed. And it leaves your skin like silk!

AUTO THIEF ESCAPES FROM 2 PATROLMEN

Two Other Cars Taken Here; One Is Found at Scout Camp.

men forced the car into the curb. Leaping from the machine before it came to a stop, the thief ran in the direction of the Erie tracks and escaped. The car was taken to the garage of the Danner Buick Co., on north Main street by the police.

Sunday night the automobile thieves continued their activities by taking two other cars, one of which was found near the entrance of the Boy Scout camp, south of the city this morning. Shortly after 7:30 p. m. yesterday the police received the report from Fred Kirtz of Alger, O., that his Buick sedan had been stolen from near the Harding High school. The machine was the one found near the Scout camp this morning where it had been abandoned after stealing a pole.

The theft of a studebaker sedan from the home of Dale Lawrence on the Smeltzer road, was reported to the police by Lawrence at 9 p. m. yesterday. The car had not been recovered by the police today. It was described as being a 1929 model with Ohio license B48-991.

COMMITTEE PLANS Y. M. C. A. RECEPTION

Delegates To Young Men's Conference To Get Acquainted at Auditorium.

Arrangements for the Saturday night reception for the seventh annual Ohio Young Men's conference here this week-end will be up most of the meeting of committee chairmen yesterday afternoon at the Y. M. C. A.

Invitations to the reception in the Star auditorium, which will be informal, have been sent a number of young women in Marion. The Squareshed, Y-Indus, Phalanx and Mars clubs of Marion will be the entertaining clubs for the more than 200 delegates expected to attend the conference. About 800 young men and women are expected at the reception which will begin at 9 p. m.

Word was received from Columbus this morning that a delegation of 40 will attend the conference from there. The principal speakers during the sessions of Friday, Saturday and Sunday will be J. Edward Sproul of New York City, secretary of young men's work of the national Y. M. C. A. council, Dr. James Thomas, pastor of the Hyde Park Methodist church in Cincinnati, and Dr. Frank D. Slutz, lecturer and educator of Dayton.

DRAWS SENTENCE TO INDUSTRIAL SCHOOL

Paul Crissinger, 16, of 380 Commercial street, was sentenced to the Boys' Industrial school at Lancaster for the third time when he was taken before Juvenile Judge Oscar Gast on charge of attempting to steal chickens.

Crissinger was arrested Saturday night by police after George Redman of 304 Uncapher avenue heard him in a chicken coop belonging to Mrs. Margaret Buckingham at 286 Uncapher avenue. Officers said Crissinger was hidden under a rabbit pen near the coop when they investigated.

Judge Gast sent Crissinger to the industrial school in March, 1929, and again in January, 1931, for previous offenses.

CHINESE USE ANCIENT WEAPON

This is the type of antiquated weapon with which the embattled Chinese at Chapel, Shanghai, repulsed the onslaughts of the well-armed, well-trained Japanese who attempted to occupy the quarter. The weapon is an obsolete trench mortar, almost as dangerous to the users as it is to the targets. The soldier shown is just about to load the mortar with its weird-looking projectile.

20 Men's Bible Classes Form Local Federation

W. P. Cass Elected President of Religious Group Representing 1,500 Laymen of Marion Churches; 220 Attend Organization Meeting.

Two hundred and twenty men, representing 20 Marion churches, organized a Men's Religious Federation yesterday afternoon at the First United Brethren church.

The organization of the federation is the first concerted movement made in Marion to organize the men of the city's Bible classes. The federation is for laymen of the churches although ministers of the city will be welcomed at meetings.

W. P. Cass, president of the Men's class of Central Christian church, was elected president of the federation. The federation now has a membership of approximately 1,500 men, which is expected to be doubled after a membership campaign early this spring.

Membership in the federation is open to men of any Bible class in the city. Meetings will be held monthly.

FOE "ERASES" COLL, GOTHAM DESPERADO

"Baby Murder" Suspect Killed in Store by Machine Gunner.

barrel of the machine gun, rested it carefully on his left arm and pulled the trigger.

It was seconds for those who saw it and eternity for Vincent Coll. His body slid down, almost doubling up, and wedged in the booth near the floor.

The slayer backed out of the store. A companion, armed with a machine gun, was awaiting him there at the door of a sedan at the wheel of which was a third man. They drove away.

Police gave pursuit in a commandeered cab, and fired at the racing car, but ineffectually. The killer's car was lost in traffic at Eighth avenue and 50th street.

No Regrets from Police
Police expressed no regret over Coll's death, but they regarded all known gangsters brought in immediately. Principally they wanted "Dutch" Schultz, the man who police said had offered $50,000 to the men who "erased" Coll.

Coll quit the "beer racket" a month ago, police said. Since then, they learned, he had been living by the fruits of strong arm and "chiseling"—forcing gamblers, dive keepers and other criminals to contribute cash to the Coll bank roll under threat of being slain.

"Less than a week ago two men and a woman were shot dead in their Bronx home by gunmen hunting Coll. Coll had left the place a short time before."

Twenty minutes after Coll's murder his bride of a month appeared at the drugstore and became hysterical. Police were able to learn little from her.

For the last three Sunday nights baptismal services have been held before the sermon hour and last night the church was filled to capacity for the services. A Sunday school room was opened to accommodate the large crowd.

Services will be held each night this week at 7:30, except Saturday. Rev. Mr. Porter will preach tonight on the subject, "When You Shall See Yourself Thrust Out."

The purpose of the organization is to get the men who are not members of any Bible or Sunday school class to affiliate with some class. Mr. Cass said this morning.

Other Officers
Elected with Mr. Cass were E. L. Cleveland of the First Reformed church, vice president; Henry Lawson of Emmanuel's Lutheran church, secretary; and R. H. Robinson of Epworth M. E. church, treasurer.

Paul V. Barrett of Findlay, gave an inspirational talk yesterday afternoon. Mr. Barrett is teacher of the Men's Bible class at the First Presbyterian church in Findlay.

The idea for such an organization of men's classes started some time ago at a class meeting in one of the churches at which presidents of several other men's classes were present. Discussion favored such an organization and the heads of 20 classes in the city were asked to meet at the Y. M. C. A. At the meeting, a committee was named to draw up a letter of explanation, to be read to members of the classes. The classes were unanimously in favor of such an organization, and the leaders of the movement called the meeting yesterday.

A constitution and by-laws were presented by a committee, L. V. Uncapher, chairman, Vernon Goff and W. P. Cass, and with minor amendments, was accepted. Officers of the federation and the chairman of each standing committee will compose the executive committee.

Officers To Meet
A meeting of all elected officers and presidents of Bible classes will be called in a few days to establish committees and name their personnel.

The Men's chorus of the First U. B. church sang three numbers at the opening of the meeting. In the absence of A. E. Haruff, temporary chairman, Vernon Goff acted as chairman until after the election. L. V. Uncapher acted as temporary secretary. Rev. S. E. Porter of Emmanuel Baptist church led the singing of "Blest Be The Tie That Binds."

The twenty classes represented yesterday, and the leaders, were from the following churches: Trinity Baptist, A. G. Uncapher; First Emmanuel Baptist, John Ralston; First Church of the Brethren, Glen Baird; Central Christian, W. P. Cass; Calvary Evangelical, A. F. Haruff; Oakland Evangelical, C. Carey; Greenwood Evangelical, William Gorenfeld; Salem Evangelical, Living Dutt; Emmanuel's Lutheran, Henry Dawson; St. Paul's English Lutheran, R. A. McEvoy; Epworth M. E., W. E. Alley; Wesley M. E., L. V. Uncapher; Prospect Street M. E., Vernon Goff; First Church of the Nazarene, Roy Stinehelfer; First Presbyterian, Harry Johnson; Forest Lawn Presbyterian, James O'Dowd; Lee Street Presbyterian, Henry Grimes; First Reformed, Carl Ebert; First United Brethren, Jacob Barkley.

The federation will meet March 6, the place to be announced later.

PNEUMONIA CAUSES DEATH OF WOMAN
RICHWOOD, Feb. 8.—Miss Mary Ann McCoubrey, 85, died this morning at her home one mile east of here after an illness of one week with pneumonia. She was born in Ireland Dec. 29, 1846 and came to Richwood in 1856. A brother, G. A. McCoubrey, survives.

The funeral will be held in the home Wednesday at 2 p. m. with Rev. J. R. Lloyd officiating. The body will be placed in the Claiborne mausoleum.

Conducts Conference.
Rev. R. A. San, superintendent of the Columbus district of the Evangelical church conducted the second quarterly conference of Oakland church last night. Tonight he will conduct a conference at the Salem church east of Marion. He conducted services yesterday morning at Greenwood church.

devastated by fire, and fierce bombardments.

Foreign residents of the settlement entered a strong protest against Japanese airplanes today, however, asking that the Japanese be forbidden to fly over the foreign quarter, because of danger of drawing the fire of the Chinese guns toward the settlement.

There was only desultory machine gun and rifle fire over (Chapel) during the morning but fire destroyed a number of foreign-style villas and other buildings in the no-man's land to the north of the district.

A thousand valuable race horses owned by foreigners and wealthy Chinese were deserted by their Chinese attendants, who fled from the International Recreation club at Kiangwan when Japanese troops appeared nearby. The appearance of armored cars laden with blue lace on the way to the front at Woosung was too much for the frightened coolies.

Prepare for Long Stay
Meanwhile, preparations for a long stay were made by the newly arrived United States army troops. Officers made arrangements to send to Manila for their families and hotels and provision was made for long-term accommodations.

A wholesale exodus of Japanese from Shanghai has reduced the Japanese population by nearly 20 per cent and the flight continued today.

sin. All of Manchuria would be excluded from the proposal. Japan, a spokesman said, intended definitely and permanently to demilitarize Manchuria herself.

Plans Outlined
"Manchuria is our frontier," he said, "and we can keep that clean ourselves. We can handle that problem single-handed, but the cooperation of the other powers is necessary in dealing with the problem of China proper. We are going to dispose of all Chinese soldiers in Manchuria by showing a sincere willingness to cooperate with us in the establishment of peace and order there will be utilized as police all others will be treated as bandits."

The spokesman said existing treaties were predicated on the assumption that China was able to work out her own problems. Japan is convinced now, he said, that this assumption was false and that the powers must intervene.

Japan Demilitarization Proposal Viewed Unfavorably.

By The Associated Press
WASHINGTON, Feb. 8.—The United States looks upon the proposal to demilitarize Chinese ports as reopening the question of the partition of China and will oppose such a move.

The position became clear at the state department today as officials studied unofficial reports of the position outlined in Tokyo. Officially the question has not yet been brought to the attention of this government.

Only last November Japan reaffirmed a stand taken with Great Britain and the United States 40 years ago opposing the partition or disintegration of China.

TRIBUTE PAID TO BOY SCOUTS HERE

Marion Pastors Devote Part of Services to Anniversary Observance.

Tribute to the Boy Scouts of America was paid yesterday in Marion services. Marion pastors generally devoted part of their services to joining in the celebration of the twenty-second anniversary of the founding of the organization on Feb. 8, 1910.

Dr. C. E. Turley, pastor of Epworth M. E. church, declared integrity of character, one of scouting's ideals, is essential to success in life. Troop 3 took part in the services at the church.

A large group of parents and friends attended a Boy Scout service last night at the Lee Street Presbyterian church when Paramount Council, No. 37, Daughters of America presented a large American flag to Troop 8. Mrs. Carrie A. Chippis, president of the past counselors of the organization, made the presentation to Jacob Moore, junior assistant scoutmaster. Mrs. Chippis gave a talk on the meaning of the American flag and urged the scouts to honor and care for it by their own conduct.

The story of how scouting came to America in 1910 through a good turn done by a London scout for William D. Boyce, late Chicago publisher, was told by Robert Eyre, senior patrol leader, Lynn Kellogg, scoutmaster, aided in the program. The service was closed with the pledge of allegiance and the singing of the "Star Spangled Banner."

The fact that 50 per cent of all scout troops in this country are sponsored by churches was stressed in many local services.

Ohio Town May Be Forced Into Receivership

By The Associated Press
CAMPBELL, O., Feb. 8.—A municipal receivership—probably the first in Ohio—was considered today as a possible means of relieving this steel-town's financial distress.

Officials said Campbell was on the verge of bankruptcy. It already has defaulted on $51,000 in bonds, and owes $96,028 in unpaid salaries and other claims. Its employees have not been paid for four months. The Ohio Edison Co., has filed suit to collect $20,000 in unpaid light bills.

Including the deficit carried over from last year, Campbell's estimated 1932 shortage is $266,766.

HUSBAND CONFESSES SHOOTING OF WIFE

Medina County Farmer Admits Murder Followed Domestic Quarrel.

By The Associated Press
MEDINA, O., Feb. 8.—The slaying of Mrs. Anna Urban at her Medina county farm home was solved last night, Sheriff L. E. Buffington said, by an alleged confession of her husband, Anton Urban, 45.

In a statement, the sheriff said, Urban told of shooting his wife after she fired a shot at him during an argument.

Mrs. Urban's body was found Dec. 7. The husband was arrested and then released.

Last week, however, a Cleveland woman gave police the names of two men she said could help solve the crime. They admitted they sold the revolver to Urban and he was arrested again. The gun he allegedly used was found Saturday in a haymow.

Urban's confession, the sheriff said, related that the quarrel began when he asked his wife for $500. She refused and allegedly fired one shot in the following quarrel. Her gun was found beside her body.

PENS FILL RAPIDLY FOR LIVESTOCK SALE

Arrangements Completed for Opening Auction of New Company Today.

Pens of the Marion Livestock Sales Co. were filling rapidly with stock this morning as last minute preparations for the company's initial auction sale this afternoon were completed.

A brief address by Ralph T. Lewis, who attended a similar auction sale in Chillicothe last Friday, was to officially open the sale at 1 p. m. Immediately afterward, a baby beef donated to the chamber of commerce by the livestock company was to be sold, the proceeds to go to the baby nurse fund.

Several hundred persons were expected to witness the first sale. The first of 100 buyers expected to bid on stock this afternoon were arriving this morning from parking companies and meat buying concerns.

Two representatives of the Erie railroad were in Marion today to attend the sale. They were H. B. Rogers of East Buffalo, N. Y., general livestock agent, and F. W. Fisher, general agent at Columbus.

ASTRONOMER SAYS CALENDAR IS WRONG
By International News Service
BERLIN.—"Our calendar is wrong; it is not 1932 year, but 1939 years that have passed since the birth of Jesus."

This is the latest announced discovery of Professor Dr. Oswald Gerhardt, Berlin scientist and astronomer. He is basing his theory on the Christmas legend, according to which three wise men from the East arrived at Bethlehem, because "the star" had told them that Jesus had been born. That star is supposed to be Saturn, which appeared in the astronomical constellation of "fish" in the year 7 B. C., but not in what is called the year 1. Since the sign of the "fish" was held in the East as a symbol of the Jewish people, whereas the Saturn represented something royal, the wise men from the East, who according to Professor Gerhardt were Asian astrologers, drew the conclusion that "a King was born to the people of Judah."

SMITH ENTRY PUTS CRIMP ON ROOSEVELT

New York Governor's Runaway Race for Nomination Likely To Stop.

The New York Times inferred Smith was suffering from a bad case of "presidentialitis," and added: "Even the most blindly compliant champion of Governor Roosevelt must see that the entrance of Mr. Smith into the contest for the presidency heavily clouds the governor's own prospects."

The Herald-Tribune noted Smith's "frankness and directness" to be "in sharp contrast with the pussy-footing and evasive tactics of Franklin D. Roosevelt."

In the south where "Democracy's stronghold lies, much of the comment was in a vein of regret. "It is unfortunate for the Democratic party," said the Louisville Courier-Journal, "for it certainly means a struggle between Smith forces and Roosevelt forces."

The "masterful statement" will serve to enhance Smith's influence and position in the party, but the Age-Herald of Birmingham said the statement "tears a wheel off the Roosevelt band wagon."

Opinions from West
Press comment from other parts of the country is represented in the following widely scattered editorial excerpts:

Dex Moines Register: "The net effect of the announcement is to make the Democratic race much more of a free-for-all than it was before."

St. Louis Globe-Democrat: "The path to the nomination of Gov. Roosevelt ought to be made easy."

Los Angeles Times: "It (the Smith announcement) knocks into a cocked hat the chances of Gov. Roosevelt to obtain the nomination."

Portland, Maine Press-Herald: "It leaves things pretty much where they were before."

Philadelphia Public Ledger: "The net result is to add to an already confused discordant situation."

CHURCH FILLED FOR REVIVAL SERVICES

Central Christian Pastor Preaches on "The Cross and Indifference."

A large crowd was turned away from Central Christian church last night as the second week of revival services opened. The church auditorium was filled to capacity to hear the services.

Harry Box, visiting song leader and soloist, dramatized the song, "Crucify, Crucify," with Everett Smith acting as the Christ, and members of the congregation in the roles of carpenters, supplicants and the crowd which passed Jesus by.

Rev. James O. Dodd, pastor, delivered a sermon on the subject, "The Cross and Indifference." "Our indifference today is crucifying Jesus afresh and people fail to accept Christ mainly because of indifference," he said.

The service was a memorial for the "dead" members of the church.

The Way To Start Is To Start.

Last week 220 men and women representing sixty nations met in Geneva for a disarmament conference that had been in preparation since the World War. They met in the shadow of war between China and Japan. The jibes and doubts of skeptics were ringing in their ears. They were conscious that they had not been given undivided support for their intentions of taking steps toward disarmament. They were almost apologetic for daring to talk disarmament against the rumble of guns and the livid glow of war's destruction.

It is possible that they will accomplish nothing. Their work during the coming months will be performed in a vacuum which may persuade the weak of heart and feeble of purpose that they are wasting time on a dream which the world can not understand. Even the staunchest of them will suspect many times that disarmament is a futile hope so long as fear, suspicion and greed mold men's actions. They may even come to believe that those who profess to believe in disarmament have been lulled into a false sense of security by their own idealism.

If all these things happen, if the disarmament conference fails to accomplish anything tangible, will it have been proved that men who talk of disarmament are hopeless dreamers? Will it prove that Heinrich Brüning, Dino Grandi, Sir John Simon, Andre Tardieu, Aristide Briand, Henry L. Stimson, Nicholas Murray Butler, Herbert Hoover—all the great leaders who have laid the groundwork for the conference and will participate in it directly and indirectly—are misguided dreamers?

Skeptics will say, "Yes." They have been persecuting dreamers since the beginning of time, yet, had the world listened to them instead of the dreamers there would be none of the things men mean when they speak of civilization. Disarmament is a dream, yes, but so was every worthwhile thing once a dream. It may be fifty, 100 or 1,000 years before it is translated into actuality. Each new generation must accept the responsibility to keep it alive.

The world disarmament conference is a start the first step to convince a skeptical world which always has settled its problems by war that an active minority, believing there is a better way, insists on being heard. The conference may fall of direct accomplishments, but discouragement only strengthens ideals that are fit to survive. Resentment against the waste and misery of war is as universal as man's preference for peace. Eventually, disarmament will come.

Following the federal jury's verdict of guilty in the Chicago sanitary district graft trial, two former political leaders—Timothy J. Crowley, a Democrat, and Frank J. Linn, a Republican—were given prison sentences last week, and two of their henchmen were given jail sentences and fines. Since the recent citizenship of the Windy City became aroused, grafting and corruption in office has not been paying the financial returns it once did, thanks to the "secret committee of six."

Growth of an Idea.

Tariff is a technical subject. Statistical arguments for tariff policy are not generally understood. It is not necessary that they should be generally understood; but the public is interested in the broad principle. It understands that the application of a tariff which protects home industry raises the standard of living, and that is all it needs to know. Politicians who attempt to make a stalking horse of tariff reduction constantly make the mistake of underestimating popular devotion to the tariff principle.

Thirty years ago Joseph Chamberlain, distinguished father of the present British chancellor of the exchequer, argued for tariff reform on the grounds of the benefits of protective policies in the United States and Germany. Rebuffed, he died regretting that he had been unable to convince his countrymen that he and his followers were right. In making the recent speech which turned Britain to a tariff nation, his son spoke of the nation's debt to his father in these words:

"I believe he would have found consolation in the bitterness of his disappointment that these proposals, the climax of his own conception, should be made before the house of commons which he loved."

It is a privilege to watch the growth of an idea as it overcomes successively the opposition of conservative elements, takes root as a liberal principle and at last establishes itself in popular approval as conservative doctrine. In their acceptance of a tariff policy, the British have recognized as truth what Joseph Chamberlain tried vainly to tell them decades ago—that a nation's first obligation is to protect its workers against the importation of products made under conditions they can not duplicate without lowering their standards of living.

The sales at the Chicago automobile show, which closed Saturday night, were twenty per cent. greater than those of last season's show there. If there is an increased demand for the necessities of life as thus indicated, it can hardly be other than a matter of time till the demand for such luxuries as food and clothing will show a pick-up.

Who knows? When Senator Couzens backed the movement to investigate the financial affairs of the city of Detroit, it may be that he was unaware of the fact that much of the difficulty which has caused the city to be $5,000,000 shy of its needs would be traced back to the time when he was mayor of the city.

The Diamond line is increasing the speed of six ships by four knots. The natural assumption would be that this is being done by installing new engines, but that's not the answer. The increased speed is being attained by so refining the lines of their sterns by sharpening them that the propellers may be placed further forward, thus giving them better resistance than they can get by pumping water toward each other. There's a lot in the stream-line idea.

Editorial Opinion.

CANADA ENTERS THE PICTURE.
The revolution in Salvador is just another quarrel of the "ins" and "outs," apparently, but it is noteworthy as the first instance where Canadian and American naval vessels have combined forces on equal terms to protect foreign interests. A Canadian cruiser was the first to hasten to a coastal waters of Salvador when violence broke out, and now Canada and the United States each have two vessels close by.

Thus the task of carrying the white man's burden in the tropics has fallen on the shoulders of two North American nations instead of being a monopoly of the United States. Neither power has done much in the present outbreak thus far, due in part to the unwillingness of Max Martinez, President of Salvador, to accept aid from the United States, which has withheld recognition of his government.

The division of responsibility between Canada and the United States for protection of foreign lives and interests in the American tropics has several advantages, even though it is not anticipated in any of the literature of the Monroe doctrine. When two Powers intervene, there is less danger that interests of any one nation will be favored, and likewise there is less suspicion that the intervening Power is seeking territory.

The new authority assumed by Canada in the Western Hemisphere likewise accords with the new position of the Ottawa Government. Having its own Minister at Washington, it is developing its own foreign policy, distinct from that of Great Britain. It is developing with the American foreign policy, particularly with the American commerce. It is natural, therefore, that Canada should begin to share the international policy duty that falls to stronger nations. Cincinnati Enquirer.

ON THE SUSPENSE CALENDAR.

When business gets on its feet and there is revived confidence in the future, this country is going to witness some extensive buying campaigns. The railroads furnish case in point. In 1931, according to the Railway Age, they ordered 10,888 freight cars. This compares with 111,218 bought in 1929. Locomotives bought in 1931 numbered 235, and it is said that any 1,000 in which locomotive purchases fall below 1,000 is regarded as a lean year. Similar comparisons of purchases to meet other railway needs would doubtless show corresponding reductions.

The railroads are not alone in putting off until the arrival of better times that which, but for the depression, would be provided now. It was recently announced that New York City had effected "savings" reaching the impressive total of $110,000,000, but it appears that these "savings" in reality spelled "postponement" in the majority of cases. The projects for which the money was to be spent went to a "suspense calendar." It is significant that $78,000,000 was to be used in the development of the Delaware river water supply. It is an expenditure which must have water in adequate quantity. Of the other millions carried to this suspense calendar, much was called for by the need of more schools and hospitals, and proposals for the creation of parks and playgrounds. These are things that will doubtless be provided in the future.

The case of the railroads, and of New York and other cities, finds parallel in commerce and industry. It has its counterpart in the affairs of a multitude of private citizens. In other words, the nation is playing a vast amount of potential spending on its suspense calendar. It gives promise of lively times ahead after it has become apparent that this earlier business depression, is taking its place among the misfortunes of the past—Boston Transcript.

Paris Loan Rates Are Low.

BY MARY KNIGHT
Paris, Feb. 8.—Operating in competition with the government monopoly, the Credit Municipal, which was inaugurated in 1777, the discovery of bootleg pawnbrokers here has angered the police department, which has instigated a drive on them.

This year interest rates have been reduced on loans on family treasures at the national pawn shops, so that it has become less expensive to "hook" the home valuables than it ever has been before, and the practice therefore has increased.

Legal loans are made through the Credit Municipal here from four cents to thousands of dollars, and for loans up to $40 the rate has been lowered from seven to six per cent. On loans over $40 the rate is seven and a half per cent. instead of the former eight per cent.

The sign of the three balls in France carries the official title of Mont-de-Piété. The greatest loan ever floated, $140,000, was made on a necklace of brilliants. The owner was enabled to settle difficulties of a domestic nature and to retrieve the property within six months.

The nickname of the government operated pawnshop here is "Uncle's Place," and both rich and poor alike are regular customers. According to a summary of the year, 1931, loans made by the Credit Municipal totaled approximately 10,000,000,000 francs, or the equivalent of $400,000,000.

Small loans on watches, rings and stickpins are becoming less numerous, according to the year's report, and the wealthy class, who come to "Mon Uncle" with diamonds and furs to pledge, are on the increase. The other class that maintains a steady trade is the one applying for "misery" loans, which range from twelve cents to eighty cents and are carried without charge for a period of two months.

The most popular articles up for pawn include radios, cameras, expensive shawls, furs, diamonds and pearl necklaces. These objects rarely are abandoned, say officials, the ratio of foreclosures being about four to a hundred.

The operation of the illegal shops will be shut down as detrimental to the Credit Municipal. The bootleg pawnbrokers are charging an exorbitant rate of interest, from twelve to twenty per cent. a month, more than double that of the government hockshop.

Nobleman Who Fought on Ohio Soil.

BY J. H. GALBRAITH
Some time early in the struggle of the American colonies for freedom, a well-educated and fine-mannered young man, speaking French and German as well as English, appeared at several of the camps for American troops, seeking opportunity to serve in the army. Finding, he began the study of medicine under a German professor of surgery at Baltimore, but this study was interrupted shortly after, when he procured an appointment as surgeon in the Seventh Pennsylvania regiment under Colonel William A. Irvine, who later was made commander at Pittsburgh, and was acting in that capacity when the expedition against the Indians at Sandusky was fitted out. Irvine loaned the young surgeon to the expedition to serve as aide-de-camp. His name as carried on the roster of the army was John Rose.

Of the retreat of the American forces after the unfortunate defeat at Rose was admittedly the hero. His military genius and coolness in the presence of great danger was remarkable. As he admitted later, John Rose was a Russian officer, trained in the art of war in the military schools of Russia and, moreover, of the Russian aristocracy, a nobleman. His real name was Gustavus H. DeRoenthal, of Livonia, a baron of the empire. This is the explanation of his presence in America.

Seeing another nobleman strike an uncle one day, he challenged the nobleman to duel, and in it, killed him. He fled the country and hid in England for a short time. Hearing of the struggle of the colonies he decided to cast his lot with the patriots. When, through friends, a pardon was procured for him, he decided to return to his native country and, in a letter to a superior officer, for the first time revealed his true identity.

New York Day by Day.

BY O. O. MINTYRE
New York, Feb. 8.—Diary of a modern Pety Raising early and a note from Will Rogers? Bombay, an autographed volume from Yale; time Williams and a bronze and a tray sculpture by McCalland Barclay. Like Christmas. Le surely through town, meeting Octavus Roy at Inez Cohen and the Carl Brandis.

On way to my chambers talked to William Huntington Wright, whom I have not seen since he became the internationally celebrated S. Van Dine and twitted him about his pedantically pointed beard. With my wife to the Messmore Kendalls, seeing there the Con Nastis, Stanley Rinehart, Bill Hamilton and Teddy Rousseau.

New York's most artistic floor walker is a snow-white-haired gentleman, straight as an arrow—a cameo of the long ago and reminder of Captain Jim Churchill, of cafe fame. He is of noble Kentucky lineage, a member of the exclusive Penderennis club, and possessor of enormous fortunes. For years he graced the dark-timbered splendor of a now bankrupt avenue hat store and symbolizes even in a ship the last holdout against the golden floor of nouveaux riches.

Speaking of hat shops, the biggest individual hat buyer is Aubrey L. Eada, one of the fashion plates. He buys more than fifty a year, at average of one a week. When he finds "dim on his hands," he goes shopping for a hat.

That deservedly best-selling book "Forever and Ever," bears the name of Warren Spencer, but is really the pseudonym of Will C. and N. Lengel. Mr. Lengel is associate editor of Cosmopolitan, and in relaxing moments he and his wife plotted and wrote the volume that brought a rousing gush of unsolicited praise from Robert Hichens, Theodore Dreiser, Rupert Hughes and Galsworthy. It is a superb novel.

Mr. Lengel, incidentally, was once a newspaper man himself, being an alumnus of the famous experimental ground for the literary Colonel Nelson's Kansas City Star.

Broadway suffers the loss of three conspicuous playboys this winter. Billy Leeds, Br. Finney, Jr., and Sid Smith shoved off for the Orient to enjoy big game hunting and cash as the legend goes, is carrying the torch.

The "lung block," long a stand-by of the sex sisters, is in vogue. It was so named because of its stupendous death rate among its miserable crannies. Bounded by Market, Hamilton, Cherry and Catherine streets, it is regarded as the worst of all metropolitan slums. In place of the ancient rookeries there will spring up model tenements, already called "White-Collar City," where small wage-earners may live in the atmosphere of cleanliness and sunshine. In the same neighborhood Al Smith played "duck-on-a-rock" when a boy.

The Boston dashes in with the frisk of a tornado from a wall, rolls on the carpet, stretches and as quickly as I write this is twitching in dreams of a chase. That's the way we should handle this bugaboo called depression.

He's a Loser by It.

Another chap who doesn't like this winter is the dealer in skid chains.—Danbury News.

A Washington Daybook.

BY HERBERT PLUMMER
Washington, Feb. 8.—These are busy days for a bespectacled young chap in the house who is charged with the duty of keeping Speaker Jack Garner and other presiding officers in the middle of that sometimes treacherous parliamentary road.

Lewis Deschler, just past thirty, is the right-hand man for Garner and other temporary presiding officers of the house. It's up to him to see that the correct words are put into the mouths at the proper time.

With the political division so close as it is in this congress, the parliamentary must be constantly on his toes.

It is very easy for the house to get into a parliamentary tangle. There are those in the house—notably the "progressive bloc"—who rely on their knowledge of the rules to gain advantage.

Correct rulings from the chair must at times be made quickly. It's Deschler's job to see that the chair is in a position to do so.

He is always within a few feet of the speaker's dais, where his whispered advice may be heard easily by the chair. Often before a member has completed his appeal for a ruling Deschler has begun this whispered advice.

And he remains ever alert at his post until the storm has subsided.

Deschler has been house parliamentarian for more than four years. Speaker Longworth appointed him to succeed Lehr Fess, the son of the United States senator from Ohio. He had been Fess' assistant.

Before that he was a timekeeper in the house. He has been a student of parliamentary law for years, becoming interested in it by observing how important a part it played in procedure. When young Fess decided to resign, Longworth called him in one day and told him if he would learn all he could, would the place become vacant he would give him a try at it.

Deschler made good and now is admitted to expert parliamentarians in the house to be one of the best men for the job the house has had.

When he is not on the floor, Deschler may be found in the speaker's rooms, just across the hall. His desk is in a corner and is littered with all sorts of books on rules and parliamentary law.

Not far away are the chambers of the supreme court, where he must go frequently to look up decisions affecting some parliamentary question.

He has been known to work all night on to settle the next day.

"I've worked all night to get a decision ready by the time the house meets the next morning and then have the pleasure of seeing the point never raised," he says.

"This job is like that."

Divorce Judge Has Secret of Marital Bliss

By United Press
SAN FRANCISCO—Judge Life T. Jacks, who hears an average of four divorce cases per day, has his own theory of this happy marriage business. He sums it up, "Look before you leap."

"Sensible men and women wouldn't think of buying real estate without investigating the title, and yet, they will often marry some one whom they met at a party, or week-end in the country," he said. "It's all very romantic to take a husband, or a wife, at face value, but usually this sort of blind romance ends happily only in the movies."

His Suggestions
He offered these suggestions for those already married: The home should never become rigidly regulated by routine.

Neither husband, nor wife should break off earlier friendships, or surrender any special interest. They cannot grow if each does not develop separately.

The one who has the most leisure should relieve the other from time-consuming duties.

Checking Account
The checking account should be in the names of both. Affection cannot reach a high level if the husband assumes financial guardianship.

The wife should never make insulting remarks about the salary of the husband. He is doing the best he can.

They should be fortified against any suggestion of social rivalry or copying more affluent friends.

There must be a genuine respect for the personality and rights of each.

Grandmother at 28.
BOSTON—A grandmother at the age of 28. This record breaking revelation was made by Mrs. Catherine Di Ianni of the North End, who is now nearly 24 and has three married daughters and two sons. Mrs. Di Ianni was only 11 years old when she married in New York City, giving her age as 16. At 12 years of age she had her first child, now Mrs. Katy Di Ianni, who married a second cousin at 15, and at the age of 18 had a baby girl. This made Mrs. Di Ianni a grandmother at 28.

SILVER USED IN BUILDING CHURCH

One Once So Plentiful in Montana It Substituted for Stone.

By United Press
BUTTE, Mont.—Silver was once so plentiful in Butte that one bearing the precious metal was used in the construction of a church here.

The rock, used in the foundations of the old Mountain View church, which was built in 1884, came from the chimney of some silver claim in the vicinity, which afterward was covered by buildings.

When the church was torn down in 1897, a junk dealer attempted to buy the stone from Joseph Gogan, a contractor in charge of wrecking the building. Gogan's suspicions were aroused by the dealer's offer and he sent the rock which weighed 3,500 pounds, to a smelter, where it was treated. Gogan received a check for $116.50.

The stone ran $75 a ton in copper and silver.

Butte newspapers did not carry stories of Gogan's luck because when the stone was smelted the free silver question was one of the principal bones of contention in the United States and it was feared that if it became known in the East that Montana building stone carried a considerable content of silver, the fact would be used as an additional argument against the free and unlimited coinage of silver.

Arms Must Be Well Groomed for Milady's Sleeveless Frock

BY JOSEPHINE HUDDLESTON
The increasing popularity of wrist length frocks worn with sleeveless frocks makes arm beauty culture a necessity.

Even though you are one of the rare women who give special and regular attention to your arms, it might be well to check over the treatment you are now following just to make sure that it is the best possible one.

Of course, arms which receive regular treatment always appear better groomed than those which are hastily cared for as the occasion requires. Then, too, the woman who cleanses her elbows as thoroughly as she does her hands and follows this cleansing with a soothing and soothing lotion to insure a smooth skin texture is apt to forget that the coloring may not be as clear as it might be, or that the skin over the elbows is loose and baggy.

For example, the texture of the skin may be very good indeed, marred only by a darker coloring than that which distinguishes the arms generally. Coloring and texture may be good, but the elbows may be too fat or too thin or the skin covering them may be loose and flabby. Certainly, with any of the beauty-destroying conditions in evidence, that condition detracts from the good points.

There are a host of treatments for correcting any one of these conditions as well as a variety of simpler methods for keeping the arms lovely if they are not in need of actual corrective treatment.

Suppose we begin with the simplest forms of insuring arm beauty and then take up the more difficult phase of arm culture.

The Work of the Brush
When the skin is in good condition and the coloring blends with the general tone of one's complexion, very little daily care will prevent the arms from showing the signs of neglect which result from lack of attention.

Always when bathing, scrub the elbows and arms well with a rich lather of soap and a bath brush. The brush works the soap into the minute crevices in the skin over the elbows and so insures thorough cleansing. The vigorous scrubbing also loosens the dead skin, hastening its natural sloughing off, so that the new skin appears in all its glory. Finally, the use of the brush brings new blood to that area, and it is by stimulating circulation thus that true beauty of skin ultimately is gained.

Rinse all traces of soap from the skin and after drying it, smooth a liberal amount of nourishing cream or hand lotion over the arms. Let this soothing, healing ointment remain on for a few minutes before removing it. After removal, pat a liberal amount of skin tonic over the arms, wiping it off and applying a second. The first application will free the skin from any remaining oil from the cream or hand lotion and the second application will close the pores, refine the skin and add a finished touch to the appearance of the arms.

LENNON'S
221 W. CENTER ST.

"Sassy" was the ultimate choice for the owner of blue eyes and pinky nose. So sassy it was named, christened with a series of kisses by Hope.
The giggled man behind the desk of the only decent hotel in town was very business-like.
Mr. and Mrs. Richard J. Hickson Dale, wrote Dickey with stiff, chilled fingers.
Laden with packages, Dickey accompanied Hope up to their room and bath $10 per night, said the business-like young man, and somehow one didn't argue with him—and left Hope and Sassy while he cruised around in search of a cheap garage. Thankful to find any garage open at that hour, making a deal, as only such ingenious youths as Dickey could dream of making. Offering his old spare tire as payment for overnight rent for his car, a tankful of gas, and whatever over in cash he might jaw the garage man into. Which amounted to $5.
What good is $5 when you've hired a room at $10, and when two young people must eat in the morning, and do some telephoning to boot?
But five dollars is five dollars, and Dickey accepted and pocketed it with a disappointed sigh.
Back in the room he found Hope snuggled under her bedcovers, her kitten cuddled in the pillow beside her.
"I was so hungry," she greeted him. "I had to take some of the milk. You can use the bathroom glass now."
"Have some more milk," he suggested, seating himself on the edge of the bed beside her. "I'll drink out of the bottle, Gimmie a cookie."
"I called up Dad," Hope confessed wide-eyed. "But only the cook answered. She said Dad wasn't in. He was out searching for me. Mamma was in hysterics in the bathroom so I didn't want to disturb her. I talked to Goody. I told her to tell the folks I was married and not to worry about me. Goody was fit to be tied!"

Well, and Hickey gravely into the phone, what did they expect? He would phone Hope's father at once and ease up the situation. Certainly! He would have a talk with Mr. Ross. At his office, or at his home, wherever he could find him. Well, if Hope was terrified at the thought of going home, perhaps it would be best for them to come right to Hickey's apartment. He'd wait and meet them there. Sure, he'd fix it up some way. They had been very naughty kids, and when he got around to it he'd be furious himself a bit.
What? They owed about $12 at the hotel and couldn't pay it? Well, connect him with the manager. Guess he'd listen to J. Hickson Dale, the producer, and trust his son for $12. A check would be in the mail for the hotel within 10 minutes.
Now is there anything else? What? Oh, well, want them some shop near by where Hope could buy a few togs? Well, let him speak to the manager of the hotel.
Thanks? Aw, cut it. How many times did he have a son getting married? How many sons did he have to celebrate over? How many little girls like Hope were there in the world to welcome as a daughter? All his life Hickey had wanted a daughter.
For the sake of our dear aunt behave yourself and don't throw around any more twelve dollar bills. Get some togs, and hit it for town. Meanwhile he'd be busy talking to the Rose family and fixing things. Sure God bless you, and all that.
Dickey's eyes were foolishly red around the rims when he hung up. "Boy," he said huskily. "That's a Pop!"
"I'll say!" breathed Hope with awed admiration. "Do you think he can really fix it, Dickey? My father did like him, you know, when he met him up at Placid."
"Everybody likes Hickey," Dickey rose and flung out his arms with a stretching gesture that brought his muscles into play.
Hope watched him, idly. But in that moment she formed a picture of her boy-husband that was to recur to her waking and sleeping—for many, many years.
"Sure, Hickey can fix it," Dickey stooped over and kissed her. "Eat that omelet, and forget worries. Hickey can fix anything. Say, you ought to see him at a dress rehearsal the night before a Broadway opening. The orchestra leader can have the croup, the leading lady be laid up in a hospital, and the chorus be three sizes too small for their costumes—and Hickey'll fix it. He'll fix it and have an opening that all New York will buzz about!"
"Of course, if he manages Papa," Hope sighed, as she poured some cream on a saucer for Sassy, "then everything's all right. Mama will have hysterics for weeks. Just on general principles. Maybe she'll never like you, Dickey. She may even cut me out of her will. But if Papa accepts things, why, I don't really worry."
To Be Continued.

SORE THROAT

FIVE minutes after you rub on Musterole your throat should begin to feel less sore. Continue the treatment once every hour for five hours and you'll be astonished at the relief.
This famous blend of oil of mustard, camphor, menthol and other ingredients brings relief naturally. Musterole gets action because it is a "counter-irritant"—not just a salve—it penetrates and stimulates blood circulation and helps to draw out infection and pain. Used by millions for 20 years. Recommended by doctors and nurses.
To Mothers—Musterole is also made in milder form for babies and small children. Ask for Children's Musterole.

"Gosh," rumbled Dickey through a mouthful of fig newton.
"I wouldn't tell her where I was," Hope went on. "But I told her I was very happy, and had a kitten, and I'd be home in the morning, and for her to tell Papa not to worry about me."
They munched thoughtfully a moment.
"Of course," said the bride, urging herself to face facts. "You know there'll be a riot in the morning, don't you? You know there will! We've got to stick together, Dickey!"
"You said it. Maybe I better phone Hickey. He can fix things all ways. Yuh, I'll phone Hickey—in the morning!"
"Dickey—did you ever love anybody except me?"
"Why, Hope! Of course not! I've had crushes, of course. And I was in love when I was seven."
She laughed gaily and repeated the blithe statement to Sassy.
After a kiss.
"Call me husband," ordered Dickey huskily.
"Husband dear!"
"Say it again."
"Husband!"
"Dearest little wife! I'd be so good to you all your days!"
Mr. and Mrs. Richard J. Hickson Dale were seated in the claret-rooster heading for New York, at 11 o'clock the next day.
They had had breakfast, and Dickey had signed for the two-dollar and ninety-cent feed, plus a dollar tip, with a baguette of flourish.
Then they phoned old Hickey and broke the news. Listened with anticipation and his chuckling congratulations. With a grand ease that made Hope's eyes watery, Dickey told his father of their predicament. No clothes, and Hope was afraid to phone Goody to jump in the car and bring her some, because Hope just knew her family would be deaf dumb and blind with rage and fury.
Well, and Hickey gravely into the phone, what did they expect? He would phone Hope's father at once and ease up the situation. Certainly! He would have a talk with Mr. Ross. At his office, or at his home, wherever he could find him. Well, if Hope was terrified at the thought of going home, perhaps it would be best for them to come right to Hickey's apartment. He'd wait and meet them there. Sure, he'd fix it up some way. They had been very naughty kids, and when he got around to it he'd be furious himself a bit.
What? They owed about $12 at the hotel and couldn't pay it? Well, connect him with the manager. Guess he'd listen to J. Hickson Dale, the producer, and trust his son for $12. A check would be in the mail for the hotel within 10 minutes.
Now is there anything else? What? Oh, well, want them some shop near by where Hope could buy a few togs? Well, let him speak to the manager of the hotel.
Thanks? Aw, cut it. How many times did he have a son getting married? How many sons did he have to celebrate over? How many little girls like Hope were there in the world to welcome as a daughter? All his life Hickey had wanted a daughter.
For the sake of our dear aunt behave yourself and don't throw around any more twelve dollar bills. Get some togs, and hit it for town. Meanwhile he'd be busy talking to the Rose family and fixing things. Sure God bless you, and all that.
Dickey's eyes were foolishly red around the rims when he hung up. "Boy," he said huskily. "That's a Pop!"
"I'll say!" breathed Hope with awed admiration. "Do you think he can really fix it, Dickey? My father did like him, you know, when he met him up at Placid."
"Everybody likes Hickey," Dickey rose and flung out his arms with a stretching gesture that brought his muscles into play.
Hope watched him, idly. But in that moment she formed a picture of her boy-husband that was to recur to her waking and sleeping—for many, many years.
"Sure, Hickey can fix it," Dickey stooped over and kissed her. "Eat that omelet, and forget worries. Hickey can fix anything. Say, you ought to see him at a dress rehearsal the night before a Broadway opening. The orchestra leader can have the croup, the leading lady be laid up in a hospital, and the chorus be three sizes too small for their costumes—and Hickey'll fix it. He'll fix it and have an opening that all New York will buzz about!"
"Of course, if he manages Papa," Hope sighed, as she poured some cream on a saucer for Sassy, "then everything's all right. Mama will have hysterics for weeks. Just on general principles. Maybe she'll never like you, Dickey. She may even cut me out of her will. But if Papa accepts things, why, I don't really worry."

"Heart of a Wife"

BY ADLE GARRISON

Ronald carries on with the scheme and Marion begins to perk up and take notice.

Ronald's eyes were suddenly aflame as I told him that Marion was sitting up and taking notice of his apparent defection. But the light died out as quickly, while his mouth was suddenly stubborn and his voice equally obstinate.
"I don't want any 'game in my own hands,'" he repeated dully. "I'll go through with this because you have told me it is the only way to save her from that."
He paused, evidently remembering that he was speaking of the man whom from his boyhood he had been taught to regard as an uncle, and I promptly saved him the necessity of further speech.
"Yes, it is the only way, and I'm immensely grateful to you. The rest doesn't matter now. You can decide that later. Ah! Hank. Thank you so much!"
Dickey's nephew was breathless as he held out to me the scarf for which I had sent him.
Marion guesses wrong.
"Aw, gee! that's nothing," he said, his head cocked toward the phonograph. A beatific smile came over his face as he realized that he had returned in time, that the record was not yet over, and that he had the chance of the next dance with Carolyn. I took the scarf from him, and adjusted it ostentatiously, for I wished to make sure that Marion had full opportunity to see the action and conjecture that I had been talking to Ronald only because I was waiting for the scarf. I knew her quickness of perception, direct inheritance from her mother, and feared that she might see through the little comedy we were staging.
"What's that Noel's Part?"
I could have saved the qualms that accompanied me as I went back to Lillian and Mary after nodding carelessly to Ronald. Marion's perceptions were quick, but they made her jump to the wrong conclusion. When I next turned my head, the two were dancing together, but Marion's face held a distinct frown, and as they danced past us, I heard her say pettishly:
"You can't fool me! I know. Auntie Madge told you to dance this with me. I saw her!"
"Don't be silly!" Ronald answered weakly.
"I'm not silly, and I have my eye-sight, too. And if you think I'm going to have my dances arranged for like some blind date's, you've got another thing coming. I couldn't get out of dancing this with you without being rude, but don't you ask me to dance another on the way of some kind and anxious relative."
"At least she doesn't suspect my part behind the scenes," I said.
"She's too hot and bothered about it all to suspect anybody just now," Mary said sapiently. "And by the time I get through, she'll be centering all the suspicion on me."
She smiled impishly at Bob and danced away with him.
"I wonder what Noel's part is going to be in all this," Lillian said.
"He's promised to 'understand' and

If You Get an Ugly Valentine, Remember It's All in Fun—Maybe

The Stores Are Stocked, So Don't Be Shocked To Find One in Your Mail.

THEY are with us again. Comic valentines are in the Marion stores in all their gaudy, slapstick crudeness. A few are of a modern trend, but most of them carry the same sarcastic sentiments that made them "quite the thing" in grandpa's day.

To some meanings the comic affords an anonymous sharp criticism but to most, they are a means to inspire a hearty laugh on a day that is sugary with sweet sentiments.

Only one type of comic valentine is missing from the local stores—Leap Year valentines from the girl friend to the boy "pash." The nearest thing to be found was a small note, "To my boy friend," with this modern verse:

"I'm looking for a Valentine Who's not afraid to pet. Now don't you throw me down. Big boy— Or you'll have me upset."

Or this one picturing a girl tripping her "big moment," might carry a thought of constancy: "I often 'throw a party.' As you can't help but know— But there's one 'party' in this world That I will never throw— That's you, my Valentine."

Every known profession or type of nuisance is drubbed in these two-for-a-penny sheets of paper, caricatured in high colors in like-wise to the type that's to be given the razzberries.

Women politicians may equine over this one to a modern woman: "You've got the vote and you think it's your mission. To go to the polls like a barn politician. And while you are voting, your husband must roam. For something to eat which he can't find at home. He's getting dyspepsia and can't work for pain. Your children neglected, ask for you in vain. While you make speeches from a broken soap box. Your family is wearing soiled clothes and torn socks."

Various ditties are written to the tight wad, merchant, bluff, grocer, lawyer, the boaster, cigar fiend, speed demon, old maid, bridge and radio fiends, the barber, garage mechanic, and "foxy grandpa."

One of them, "No Fool Like An Old Fool," carries this barb: "At all the young women you oggle and leer, Spend money for suppers, and call them 'My dear.' You really believe that it's you they admire. That to be your own tootsie all maidens aspire. When they smile at your antics and call you 'My honey.' Don't you ever suspect that they're after your money? They work you, my boy, and their game is a bold one.— But they never can find such a fool as an old one."

The girl who smokes is pictured, bleary-eyed and surrounded by cigar stubs, with the following verse: "You smoke before breakfast and smoke while in bed, A halo of smoke encircles your head. Your daily routine is 'puff upon puff.' To supply you a car-load is hardly enough."

Bets are two to one that some Marion lawyer will find this one in his mail: "Before the prohibition days You practiced at the 'bar.' And there at 'trying cases' You were a shining star."

One picture is the head of a male nitwit emerging from a money-bag marked with a large dollar sign, and beneath are these lines: "Were you in money up to the eyes? Artist pictures you as a rank and file of money."

COURT NEWS

Two Seek Divorces
Bettina Evans filed suit for divorce in common pleas court from John Robert Evans, charging extreme cruelty. He struck her, she threatened to injure her, she charges. Temporary and permanent alimony and custody of their child are sought. James H. Cornelius of Detroit and the law firm of Mouser, Young & Wiant represent Mrs. Evans.

A divorce from Arthur Hecker and restoration to her maiden name of Bonnie Bogan are sought by Bonnie Hecker. He has never adequately provided for her, she avers. He has been absent the greater part of the last five months according to the petition. J. D. Sears of Bucyrus represents Mrs. Hecker.

Judge Scofield granted Floyd Beasinger a divorce from Hazel Beasinger on grounds of gross neglect.

Sues Insurance
The Home Building, Savings & Loan Co. began suit in common pleas court Saturday against the Firemen's Fund Insurance Co. to collect $1,784.50. The loan company holds a mortgage on property, at 717 north State street covered by a policy of the insurance company, which burned, according to the petition. Hayes Thompson is counsel for the loan company.

A new handbit alarm for banks is operated by an employee lifting a lever with a toe and keeps sounding until switched off.

Just Be a 'Brick' if a Dirty Trick Is Pulled on You.

Some breezy Marionite will receive a duplicate of this crazy comic ode: "You are the most conceited ass. That ever fed on hay or grass. Although good common sense you lack, You pat yourself upon your back. Then at yourself you thrown bouquets, And always shout your own sweet praise. Go take a tumble, soak your head. You won't be missed when you are dead."

The only way to be protected from these outlandish "valentines" is to go out and buy a fistful and get them in the mail. There's the satisfaction of having sent yours first, anyway.

Banish 'Flu'
● AMAZING RELIEF IF YOU HAVE IT GUARDS AGAIN CONTRACTING IT
THIS is the time of year when influenza or "flu" is usually prevalent. And it is no disease to triffl with.
Like colds, sore throat, sinus trouble, and the vast majority of all ailments of the human body, flu is usually traceable to the absorption by the blood of the deadly poisons which form in the intestinal tract from the putrefaction of waste materials that should have been eliminated if all organs had been functioning properly.
Modern science no longer doctors the symptoms of any illness. Today we ATTACK the CAUSE. If you are suffering from the flu or any kindred ailment, get a bottle TODAY of the marvelous scientific discovery—ZO-RO-LO. It is the greatest of all assistants to Nature in cleansing the system of those terrible toxins and in re-establishing normal, balanced METABOLISM, upon which good health and happiness depends. Thus you get rid of the CAUSE and Nature will soon have your body back to normal.
Even if you are apparently well, GUARD AGAINST the "FLU" by building up your power of resistance. ZO-RO-LO will do it.
